Objectives:

- To provide participants with basic knowledge and hands-on training in embroidery, crocheting, and fabric printing techniques.
- To create awareness about fabric and garment decoration methods using simple craft techniques.
- To encourage self-employment and income-generation opportunities through handicraft skills.
- To give students practical exposure in teaching, communication, and community interaction.

Summary Report

The Department of Interior Design and Décor & Costume Design and Fashion Technology conducted an extension activity on Embroidery, Crocheting, and Fabric Printing at Girisamuduram village on 7th February 2026. The main objective of this activity was to provide basic training and create awareness about simple handicraft techniques among the village community.

The villagers showed great interest and actively participated in the hands-on training session. The activity helped them understand how these creative skills can be used for decorative purposes as well as for small-scale income generation.

Overall, the extension activity was successful in promoting creativity, skill development, and self-employment opportunities among the participants while also giving students an opportunity to engage with the community.

Outcome of the Program

- Participants learned the basic techniques of embroidery, crocheting, and fabric printing.
- Participants understood how to decorate fabrics and garments using these techniques.
- The activity created awareness about self-employment opportunities through craft work.
- Students gained experience in teaching and interacting with the community.
