Summary

Organic Revival Day was organized to promote awareness about organic farming and sustainable agriculture. The event aimed to educate students on the importance of consuming and cultivating organic produce, free from harmful chemicals and pesticides.

The day began with an informative session led by an expert in organic farming, who explained the principles of natural agriculture, composting, and the benefits of chemical-free farming. A hands-on workshop was conducted where students learned how to prepare compost using kitchen waste and plant organic vegetables in a designated garden area. They engaged in practical activities like sowing seeds, preparing organic fertilizers, and understanding irrigation methods that conserve water. The event concluded with a pledge by students to promote organic gardening at home and reduce dependency on chemically grown food.

The goal of the program is to encourage students to adopt organic gardening practices and spread awareness about chemical-free farming methods and to highlight the benefits of organic food, reduce the use of synthetic pesticides, and promote sustainable agriculture.

Outcome of the Program

1. Students gained hands-on experience in organic farming.
2. Increased awareness about the benefits of consuming organic food.
