Summary

The Department of Interior Design and Décor successfully organized a one-day seminar on the topic “Learn to Work with Interior Design.” The main objective of the program was to familiarize students with the fundamentals of interior design, its practical applications, and the latest trends shaping the profession.

The seminar highlighted the significance of creative thinking, effective space planning, material knowledge, and functional design approaches. Experts from the field shared their experiences, shedding light on industry practices, professional working methods, and career opportunities available in interior design. Special focus was given to the importance of sustainable design, innovative use of resources, and adapting to modern client requirements.

Through interactive sessions, students were encouraged to ask questions, exchange ideas, and develop a deeper understanding of how theoretical concepts can be applied in real-world projects. Practical case studies and examples were presented to illustrate design processes, client interactions, and execution techniques.

A total of 90 students and 7 faculty members participated in the program. The seminar provided participants with valuable insights into professional workflows, enhanced their creative problem-solving skills, and broadened their awareness of emerging design trends. Overall, the session proved to be highly beneficial in motivating students to approach interior design with a more professional and industry-oriented perspective.

Outcome of the Training

1. Students gained a clear understanding of fundamental concepts and practical applications in interior design.
2. Participants developed enhanced creative and problem-solving skills through exposure to real-world case studies.
3. The seminar improved awareness of professional workflows, industry practices, and career opportunities.
4. Students understood the importance of sustainability, innovation, and adaptability in modern design.
5. The program motivated participants to adopt a professional and industry-oriented approach toward interior design projects.
